

THE PRESIDENT'S CLOSURE SPEECH

The conference has now come to an end and I want to express my warm thanks to all participants.

My thanks are first directed to my colleagues in the organizing committee and in the scientific committee for all your support and for all pleasant and rewarding discussions that we have had during the planning of this congress.

I particularly want to thank our vice president, Dr. Ragnar Ohlson, who has shared the responsibility with me for all arrangements, and to professor Erik Åkerberg, the chairman of the scientific committee, who has been responsible for the arrangements of all lectures and who has also today together with Dr. Milton Bell in such an excellent way summarized the lectures and discussions held during the congress.

I would also like to express my thanks to our secretaries Bengt Lööf and Ove Hall, who have taken care of all the many details and who have had to use both working hours and spare time to get everything in order.

I also want to thank Malmö Kongressbyrå and its efficient staff for a very good job and these thanks are also extended to our interpreters.

At last I want to express my gratitude to the chairmen of the different sections, their assistants as well as all those who have contributed with lectures or taking part in the discussions.

Personally I have had possibility to listen only to a small number of all the lectures. However, from Professor Åkerbergs' and Dr. Bells' summary I think I can conclude that the congress has been as rewarding as we have hoped from the beginning and that the congress has contributed to the progress of rape research and to a further strengthening of the reputation of the rapeseed products as good raw material for the fatty industry and for feed as well as for human consumption.

With these words I declare the 5th International Rapeseed conference closed.
